The end of the year is just around the corner, which makes this month a wonderful time to squeeze in as many good deeds as possible.

1. Organize a canned food drive with your classmates and find a local food bank where you can donate the food you collect. To locate one visit the Feeding America website.
2. Send holiday cards with handwritten notes in them to your friends and loved ones.
3. Make cards for the brave firefighters and first responders saving communities during the recent wildfires in California.
4. Donate to a toy drive benefiting kids in your community, such as Toys for Tots, so they can receive presents during the holidays.
5. Learn about a holiday that is different from what you celebrate in your home and share what you discovered with your family or classmates.
6. Give a dollar to the Salvation Army buckets during the holiday season.
7. Hand out packets of hot cocoa to your classmates so they can enjoy a warm beverage when it’s cold outside.
8. Write a note to your friend or sibling congratulating them on some of the good things you’ve seen them accomplish this year.
9. Help a friend brainstorm ideas for their New Year’s Resolution.
10. Write a thank you card for janitors or other employees who help keep school your clean.
